Modern performance...

The Abaco 40 is a stylish but practical day cruiser with accommodation for the occasional short cruise. The hull provides fine sea keeping and performance in a yacht with classic aesthetics.

The Abaco 40 hull configuration utilizes a hull form designed by Mark Ellis and first introduced by Bruckmann Yachts in 1994. Able to stay on a level plane at 10 knots, the Abaco 40 is extremely fuel-efficient and provides a stable and easy ride and motion in a sea.

Designed primarily as a day boat, the Abaco 40's cockpit and salon/bridge deck are intentionally large. The pilot and co-pilot chairs offer excellent visibility and the facing settees are convertible to bunks if needed and provide large stowage space.

Large sliding doors at the aft end of the salon open to the spacious cockpit whose seating arrangement offers comfortable lounging and plenty of stowage space.

The machinery space, which houses either single or twin engine power, is located under the salon and accessed by large hatches in the sole. Day access is provided by lifting the steps that lead below to the galley. The midships engine location is what contributes to the balanced soft ride one experiences in the Abaco 40 when in heavy seas.

The accommodations below are bright and open. The ample galley has excellent air and light, being open overhead to the pilothouse. Opposite the galley are located separate head and shower compartments forward of the helm station.

The generous forward cabin is equipped with an island double or v-berth. The bureau, hanging locker, and overhead lockers provide ample stowage.

The Abaco 40 is built with each client's involvement to a level of exceptional quality and craftsmanship customers have come to expect from Bruckmann Yachts. The hull and deck are built using high performance E-glass and foam cored construction. High gloss exterior varnished teak caprail and nosing add to her classic good looks. Her elegance continues with the beautiful handcrafted interior and finish.

The Abaco 40's combination of modern design with classic styling has produced a yacht of true distinction.
